O Curas Hominum! O quantum eſt in rebus Inane! PER. S. 1.

'TIS a Thing very well worthy our Admiration, if we ſeriouſly conſider, what a numerous Heap of Cares that rational Being call'd Man daily involves himſelf in; how exceeding anxious he is to peep into the hidden Secrets of Futurity, and would be very willing to part with all the Pleaſures the preſent Now affords him, to entertain the intolerable Anguiſh of præ-knowing the many Croſſes, Accidents and Dangers he will be expos'd to on the Morrow. ——When we read the Story of Damocles, and ſee him at a Banquet, and a drawn Sword pendent o'er his Head, ſuſtain'd only by a ſingle Hair, we judge him in a wretched Condition, and would not be in the ſame, one Minute, to be poſſeſs'd of the whole World the next: Yet where would be the Difference between his Caſe and ours, were we admitted to take a Proſpect of the dark Decree of Futurity? Would not the Foreſight of becoming a Beggar one Day, loſing our deareſt Relations (who might aſſiſt us) the next, the Pain of loſing an Eye, a Leg, or an Arm, or, in ſhort, to take a Farewell of the World another Day, make us rather envy than abhor what we call'd before a miſerable Condition?

Look round the habitable World, how few
Know their own Good, or knowing it perſue!
How void of Reaſon are our Hopes and Fears!
What in the Conduct of our Life appears
So well deſign'd, and luckily begun,
But when we have our Wiſh, we wiſh undone?
DRYDEN.

What we ought to return our hearty Thanks to the Almighty for concealing from us, we moſt vigorouſly contend to know. This pernicious Deſire, by ſo frequent an Entertainment, corrupts the Mind to that Degree, that whatever little petty Thing moves out of its uſual Courſe, we preſently conclude it an Omen of our future Good or Evil.

The Stepping with their left Foot out of Bed firſt in the Morning, would terrify our modern Ladies to that Degree, as to make them keep their Chamber, and not be at home to any Viſitants all Day: But the Death of a favourite Sparrow would make them undergo the worſt Puniſhment imaginable, viz. not play a Game at Quadrille for a whole Week.——

The Lesbia's and the Cynthia's of our Years,
Who for a Sparrow's Death diſſolve in Tears. DRYD.

About a Twelve-Month ago (accompanied with a merry Friend or two) I took a Tour to France. I had been (I believe) about a Week ſettled, when one Night, being invited to Supper by a civil Gentleman and a near Neighbour, as Supper was juſt placed upon Table, and we were ſeating ourſelves, a Servant haſtily enter'd, and told us, the whole City was in a Confuſion concerning a Comet of a portentous Size, hanging pendent o'er the Market-houſe.——Indeed! (reply'd the moſt Part of the Gueſts) and inſtantly forſook the Table, and mix'd with the Mob. For my Part, I and my two Companions, being Strangers in the Place, were content to ſtir no farther than the Gentleman's Portico; and the Houſe being ſituate nigh the Market-houſe, we could commodiouſly behold the great Concourſe of People, and hear ſome of their Conjectures about this prodigious Comet.——'Tis certainly an Omen of a long and bloody War, Neighbours, quoth one, or a Plague, ſays another —— a Peſtilence, or, &c.——Well, we had need all to betake ourſelves to our Devotion.——'Tis Preſumption to out face the Almighty.——Libera nos Domine ſhould be carved out in capital Letters upon all our Doors. Happy our Forefathers, not to live to be Beholders of the dreadful approaching Times.——'Fore this Day Se'nnight we may be all ſnug in our Graves as well as they, —— &c. As for me and my Companions (having taken a ſhort View of this wond'rous Prodigy) we thought it not worth our while to mortify ourſelves with Faſting; ſo fairly retired, and carv'd the Supper, fed plentifully, and without any Ceremony return'd home, and, I believe, ſlept very ſound the whole Night away.

In our Walk the next Morning, we happened to meet the ſame Gentleman; who made a great many complimental Excuſes for his deſerting us the Night before.—— But indeed, Sirs, added he, it was a terrible Night indeed.——There's ſomething more in the Womb of Nature than we imagined.——Lord! who knows what a Day may bring forth?——Well, To-morrow will come; but what a Tribe of Evils may accompany it!——But, Gentlemen, if you'll favour me with your Company, I'll take Care and provide a good Standing in the Market-Place, that we may ſee very plain if this ſtupendous Prodigy——for all your Gang of grave Almanack-makers are to meet and give us their Opinion of it.——Being very much importuned, we gave our Conſent, and accordingly attended him.

It was about Ten o'Clock, when the People were all in Confuſion again; and the Cry went about, the Comet appeared. The Gentleman conducted us to our Stand, the Mob gathered together from all Quarters, and though we had a whole Tribe of his domeſtick Servants with Staves to guard us, we were preſs'd with the Populace.

In about an Hour's Time, all the grave old Dons were aſſembled, with a Company of experienc'd Aſtrologers with proſpective Glaſſes, &c. The Mob wanting very much to hear their ſage Opinion, readily made room for them.——Now we ſhall hear, quoth my Companion; let's prepare ourſelves for a Catalogue of dreadful Conſequences. I am in a great deal of Fear for the Nation, and long to know what may be the Event.——

After about three Quarters of an Hour's Conſideration and Diſcourſe together, the chief Aſtrologer, in Behalf of all the reſt, made us a moſt reverend Speech, adorn'd with an innumerable Collection of aſtrological Characters, and, I believe, underſtood by none, but their worſhipful Brethren, or, at leaſt, I'll anſwer for myſelf. All that I could pick out on't, was, That the Comet in Size exceeded any that ever appeared; that the Form of it was very ſtrange and unuſual; that they took it for an Omen of ſome great Evil about to befall the Nation.——But here, in an Inſtant, this unaccountable Prodigy darted down from the left Side of the Bear, and diſappeared.—— The whole Concourſe were now in the utmoſt Confuſion, ſome thinking one Thing, ſome another, but all agreeing in this Point, That it was an Omen either of ſome great Good or terrible Diſaſter about to happen.

Whilſt they were thus ſumming up their Conjectures, about half a Dozen Men came haling into the Midſt of us my Servant Tom, whom I had brought with me from England; when one of them ſtanding forth, informed us, that he and the reſt of his Companions had ſeized him with a long String in his Hand, by which he drew two or three Quires of Paper through the Air with a Candle and Lanthorn pendent from them, with which he had frighted the whole City.——For my Part, I thought the Mob would have murdered him; but my Friend bearing great Sway among them, at his Requeſt they releaſed him.—— In ſhort this vaſt Comet was no more than a Kite, Tom had made to divert a young Lad in the Neighbourhood, with a Lanthorn at the Tail on't. The moſt reverend Society of Aſtrologers skulk'd away in the greateſt Confuſion, and left their Proſpectives, and almoſt a Library of Books ſcatter'd amongſt the Mob; and even the Mob themſelves aſhamed of this ſlight Impoſition, retired with incredible Celerity.——

Thus, the moſt prodigious Comet that ever appear'd in France, an undeniable Omen of the greateſt Good or Evil about to happen, at laſt glorioufly ended in a magnificent Engliſh Toy, called a Kite.——I ſhall conclude this Paper with the 11th Ode of the 1ſt Book of Horace.

FOrbear vain Enquiries, Brother Mortals, to know
What the good Folk above deſign for us below.
Who, whoſe Brain is not turn'd, and whoſe Senſes are well,
Would mind what a Gang of Aſtrologers tell?
Whether Fate irreſiſtible makes a Decree,
To day, or To-morrow to call us away?
Such troubleſome Queries as theſe let's reſign,
And drown all our Cares in free Bumpers of Wine.
Conſider how ſwift the wing'd Minutes preſs on,
Whilſt we think on the Coming the Preſent is gone.
Then crown all the Goblets!—avaunt Cares and Sorrow!
Let us ſwagger To-day—there's no truſting To-morrow.

An eaſy and ſure Receipt to cure the Piles; in a Letter to D. Sw—t.

SIR,

IN a Letter which you ſent
Your humble Servant down in Kent,
A whole large Sheet, and ev'ry Line
Adorn'd with Wit, and dreſt in Rhime,
You gave me this Receipt to cure
The Piles, an eaſy one and ſure:
To wit; When firſt the Piles do come,
With Laureat's Odes to wipe our Bum.
Now I ne'er had the Piles; but yet
I thought that this your fam'd Receipt,
Not only preſent ones would cure,
But againſt future us ſecure.
On purpoſe up I went to Town,
And for ſuch Odes laid out a Crown:
And with them daily wip'd my Bum.
But ere one Week was paſt, I found
My Breech with Piles was ſpangled round;
And what I thought would ſure prevent 'em,
Had contrary to Reaſon ſent 'em.
I oft curſt the Receipt, and ſwore
I'd ſerve it as the Odes before.
And then, to ſhew my Spite the better,
I wip'd my —— with the whole Letter.
When, O ſtrange Miracle to tell!
I found myſelf that Inſtant well.
The Piles retreated from the Plain,
And have not ſince encamp'd again.
For this, my Gratitude is fervent,
And I remain your humble Servant;
My Name in Length won't come in Rhime,
So you'll excuſe it for this Time;
Howbeit, 'tis proper you ſhould ſee
The two firſt Characters, P. B.

P. S. I'd have ye keep ſuch Secrets by y',
If any piliſh Folk live nigh y'.

CAMILLA.

YE gentle Gales that fan the Air,
And wanton in the vocal Grove;
O! whiſper to my abſent Fair,
My ſecret Pain, my abſent Love!
And in the ſultry Heat of Day,
When the Does ſeek ſome cool Retreat,
Throw ſpicy Odours in her Way,
And ſcatter Roſes at her Feet.
But when ſhe finds her Colour fade,
And all her Charms neglected lie,
Let it inſtruct the lovely Maid,

SATURDAY, January 27.

ON Tueſday laſt, by a Court-Martial (of 11 or 12 Hours Duration) held at Portſmouth, on board his Majeſty's Ship the Dreadnought (Vice-Admiral Philip Cavendiſh, Preſident) the Captain of his Majeſty's Ship the Roſe was mulcted of three Months Pay, for his ill Treatment to his Ship's Company; and the ſaid Ship's Company had the Court's Leave of diſcharging themſelves from their Captain's Service. Wedneſday in the Afternoon Admiral Cavendiſh return'd to his Seat at Weſtbury, and Thurſday Morning his Flag (Vice of the Blue) was ſtruck.

Inſtructions given by the Corporation of St. Alban's, under their Common Seal, to their Repreſentatives in Parliament, at their late Election of a Member.

SIR,

We have choſe you to be our Repreſentative in Parliament, which is the higheſt Truſt we can repoſe in you, and in Return for ſo great a Confidence, we expect you will have a conſtant Regard for the Intereſt of your Country, and eſpecially of this Borough; but as this is a very critical Conjuncture, we think it neceſſary to give you more particular Inſtructions. In the firſt Place, Sir, as we are in profound Peace, we are ſurpriz'd to find no Reduction of the Land Forces, which we conceive to be dangerous to our Conſtitution, and we feel to be very burthenſome and oppreſſive to us. In the next Place, we are alarm'd with an Attempt to be made this Seſſion of Parliament, for extending the Exciſe Laws to Commodities not yet excis'd. We hope, however, that theſe Reports are falſe, and rais'd by the Enemies to our Conſtitution, and to his Majeſty's Government. But if any one who calls himſelf an Engliſhman, ſhould be ſo much an Enemy to his Majeſty and us, as to propoſe ſuch a Scheme, we expect, Sir, from you, the moſt vigorous Oppoſition to it; for we ſhall look upon the Continuance of ſo great a Body of Land Forces, and an Increaſe of Exciſe Officers, under our preſent Circumſtances, as a ſure Preſage of an entire Subverſion of our antient Conſtitution, and all the valuable Privileges belonging to it, which have ſo long diſtinguiſhed us from our neighbouring Nations.

A Conſtitution, Sir, that our Foreſathers have, at the Expence of their Lives and Fortunes, deliver'd ſafe to us, and which, we hope, we ſhall have the Virtue and Courage to deliver to lateſt Poſterity, under a Succeſſion of Princes iſſuing from his preſent moſt ſacred Majeſty, whoſe Family came in on the Principles of Liberty, and who can be maintain'd on no other; whoever, therefore, tries to ſap the Foundations of Liberty, is at the ſame Time undermining his Majeſty's Title to the Crown, which Thoughts give us the utmoſt Abhorrence; and we expect from you, Sir, a conſtant and ſteady Purſuit of ſuch Meaſures as will keep our Conſtitution, as near as may be, in the ſame Situation, under which it has long flouriſh'd, and we don't doubt but in ſuch a Conduct you will have the Aſſiſtance of our other worthy Member, and of all honeſt Engliſhmen.

Robbery. On Thurſday in the Evening as Mr, Honor, a Quaker, and his Wife, were coming in a Coach from their Houſe at Stockwell to Batterſea, they were robb'd by two Highwaymen, between the Faulcon and Batterſea, of a ſmall Trunk, in which were Money and Goods to the Value of 50l.

Scarborough, Jan. 26. This Day Mr. William Jans, Commander of his Majeſty's Sloop the Strickland, brought in here a French Smuggler, having on board 300 half Anchors of Brandy; this is the third Smuggler of that Nation he has taken within theſe three Months.

This Day the 12 Malefactors mention'd in our former, were executed at Tyburn.

To Mr. Mo—e, the famous Worm-Powder Apothecary.

O M——e! wouldſt thou extend thy Fame
To diſtant Climates, and augment thy Gain,
No more in pompous Advertiſements ſend
In daily Prints thyſelf to recommend:
Thy Æſculapian Art with Speed apply,
And with thy Powders Belgic Worms deſtroy.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Hague, Feb. 6. N. S.

WE have been under a great deal of Uneasiness here, since the Execution of the two Prussian Recruiting Officers, who were seized at Maestricht, where they were condemned to lose their Heads, and submitted to their Fate with an heroick Courage, though they were both in the Prime of their Years. We were afraid of his Prussian Majesty's Resentment, and of the first Explosion of his Wrath; and the more, because we had no Letters from Berlin by the last Post: But this Day we received an Account, that the King was at the Queen's Circle when he was told the News of his two Officers Death. His Majesty was so struck with it, that he stood speechless, turned pale, and at last retired to his own Apartment, without speaking one Word. The whole Court was seized with a pensive Consternation, which soon reached the City. From that Time, we are told, his Majesty has not been heard to speak one Word in publick concerning that Execution; so that we do not know his Sentiments of it. As for his Officers they foam with Rage; but according to the Maxim, Felix quem faciunt aliena pericula cautum, it is probable, that, terrified with the Severity of the Dutch Council of War, who literally executed the Laws, they will take Care how they come to inveigle away any more of their High-Mightinesses Soldiers. Be that as it will, it is written that the Regency of Hanover will shew more Complaisance for Capt. Itteritz, by sending him home safe and sound.

Gibraltar, Jan. 2. N. S. We have received Advice from Algiers, that great Rejoicings have been made there for the Victory which they pretend to have obtained over the Spaniards before Oran. They say there are several Prisoners, but do not mention any of their Names.

Barcelona, Jan. 11. N. S. Yesterday two Spanish Cruizers brought in here the English Ship Seafare, Capt. Robinson, bound from Nantz to Leghorn, with Sugar, &c. She called in at Gibraltar, where she took on board three Moorish Passengers and about 50 Quintals of Wax. They would fain make a good Prize of her, under Pretence the Moors served the English Ships so, which had Spanish Soldiers on board; but the Contrary is proved, and an Express is sent to the Court, for Directions how to proceed in this Affair. Mean while, it is thought the Ship and Men will be released, but the Goods belonging to the Moorish Merchants confiscated. The two Spanish Cruizers above-mentioned, are what they call Sattees, and were fitted out against the Moors; but have not sent in one of those Vessels in a Cruize of two Months. By an English Ship arrived in four Days from Oran, we learn, that the Moors have received great Reinforcements of Men, Ammunition, &c. in their Camp; whereupon they threaten to try their Fortune once more before the Place; but we imagine they will think again, a new Convoy of Troops and all warlike Necessaries being getting ready here for that Place.

Leghorn, Jan. 17. We have Advice from Tunis, that the Dey of that Regency having caused several Foreign Merchants to be clapt into Prison, under Pretence that they have been concerned in certain contraband Exportations of Gold and Silver out of that State, he demands no less than 110,000 Piastres for their Liberty.

Rome, Jan. 17. The Affair of Cardinal Coscia is not so entirely determined as a too hasty Report has given out, but the same seems however in a very fair Train, since the Advocate Vitelliani is to plead before the Congregation de Nonnullis only for Form sake. 'Tis said that the Pope has appointed a Congregation to examine into the Business of Gravina, and that his Holiness has moreover wrote a long Letter to the Emperor, upon a Representation made to him, that his Imperial Majesty looks upon the late Excommunication of that Duke as an Infringment on his Imperial Authority in the Kingdom of Naples.

Turin, Jan. 12. We have a current Report, that several important Letters have been found amongst the Papers of the late King Victor, containing Projects, which, had they taken Effect, might have embroil'd all Europe.

Copenhagen, Jan. 17. An Express from Sweden is gone through this Place, on his Way to London; and brings Advice, that great Preparations are making there for War, both by Sea and Land.

Genoa, Jan. 20. N. S. As the French go on with forming their Line from Dauphiné to Alsace, and are sending Troops for that Purpose to the Frontiers of Burgundy and Franche Comté, the Regency of the Canton of Bern have ordered their Subjects of the Country of Veaux to pass in Review, that they may be ready to march upon the first Notice. Letters from Turin advise, that a great Conference was holden there the 10th Instant, between the Ministers of the King of Sardinia on one Part, and the Imperial Ambassador General Philippi, and the Earl of Essex, Minister of Great Britain, on the other Part; when the Treaty of Alliance, whereby his Sardinian Majesty accedes to the Treaty of Vienna of March 16, 1731, was signed.

Cologn, Jan. 20. N. S. Two Days ago our Elector's Proclamation was read in all the Churches, appointing a Fast-Day, to beseech Almighty God to put a Stop to the fatal Colds which have been so general here, and carried off abundance of People.

Vienna, Jan. 21. N. S. They talk of sending 10,000 more Men to Italy; and that Count Merci will command in Chief in that Country.

Schafhousen, Jan. 28. The Renewal of an Alliance between the Protestant Cantons, and the Crown of France, seems about to take Place, and the Letter sketch'd out in the last Conference at Arau, being at length drawn up and approv'd by the said Cantons, will be deliver'd in a few Days to the Ambassador of his most Christian Majesty.
